Help Us Communicate With You

As the world becomes more electronically connected, Rock Energy Cooperative is asking you to submit your e-mail address—if you have one—so we can better communicate with you. Just fill out the form and return it to either our Janesville or South Beloit offices. Or better yet, e-mail the information to Barbara Uebelacker, communications specialist, at BarbU@rock.coop. Everyone who responds will be entered into a drawing. Three lucky members will receive a $50 credit on their Rock Energy bill. Don't worry. We won't load your inbox with unnecessary spam or provide your information to anyone for any reason. We just want to communicate things like planned outages, emergency safety details, member surveys, and other information to you quickly. Thanks, in advance, for your participation.

CO-OPS HELP TO KEEP ELECTRICITY AFFORDABLE

Between now and 2030, consumer demand for electricity is expected to increase by 30 percent. How do we meet that growing demand, satisfy national climate change goals, and still maintain affordable electricity?

More than 70 years ago, a fledgling network of locally controlled, member-owned, not-for-profit cooperatives tackled the massive task of bringing safe, reliable, and affordable electric service to America's vast rural heartland. After meeting that initial challenge, electric co-ops have continued to expand operations and now serve more than 40 million consumers in 47 states.

Our Energy, Our Future

Co-ops changed America then, and we can do it again now with your help. At Rock Energy, we're talking to our members of Congress, asking them to work with us to make sure that we not only deal with climate change, but do so in a way that keeps electric bills affordable.

During the past year, co-op members have made their voices heard through the Our Energy, Our Future™ grassroots awareness campaign. Join the 346,000 members who have sent more than 2 million messages asking their senators and representatives to deal with climate change in a responsible manner. Make sure to join the dialogue by visiting www.ourenergy.coop. If you don't have Internet access, give us a call and we'll help deliver your message.
